DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 10-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because they are drawn to a method, however they do not contain any process steps. Accordingly, these are not proper method claims. Dependent claims 13 and 14 are not included in this rejection because they each present a further limitation comprising a process step.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3 and 8-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by US 2002/0101552 to Yi et al. (Yi). Yi discloses a color filter substrate for a liquid crystal display comprising a substrate having a transmissive portion and a reflective portion, the transmissive portion having a groove; a black matrix on the substrate; and a color filter layer on the black matrix and the substrate. The etching depth of the groove is determined considering the thickness ratio of the color filter layer between the transmissive and reflective portions. See the abstract; paragraphs [0037], [0038], [0061]-[0064]; and Figures 6A-C.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US 2002/0101552 to Yi et al. (Yi) in view of US 6,022,647 to Hirose et al. (Hirose). The disclosure of Yi is discussed above in paragraph 2. However, Yi teaches forming the color filter layer by depositing and patterning a color resin (paragraph [0064]), not by discharging droplets into areas partitioned by banks. Hirose discloses a method of making a color filter substrate comprising the steps of forming barriers having ink-repellent characteristics on a substrate, placing ink onto regions between the barriers using an ink-jet apparatus, and curing the ink to form color filters. See the abstract; column 3, lines 9-25; and Figures 1A-D. Additionally, Hirose teaches that forming color filter layers by ink-jet printing lowers production cost and increases yield as compared to other methods of forming color filter layers, such as a pigment dispersion method wherein a photosensitive layer of a dispersed pigment is formed on a substrate and patterned (see column 1, lines 23-30 and column 1, lines 51-54). It would have been obvious to one skilled in the requisite art to utilizing ink-jet printing to form color filter layers between barriers, as taught by Hirose, in the process of Yi because it is taught that forming color filter by ink-jet printing between barriers lowers production cost and increases yield as compared to a pigment dispersion method.
